

Biodigital Convergence Petition

The Biodigital Convergence raises major ethical questions, issues involving informed consent, bodily sovereignty, human rights violations, security risks, and health risks.

- We object to unelected officials deciding on what goes into our bodies and what changes are made to it.
- We object to participating in any genetic engineering experiment or project.
- We object to the deployment of synthetic nanotechnology that freely enters the human body through air, water, food, plants or animals.

We want a moratorium placed on the nanotechnology involved in the Biodigital Convergence until there is a proper Ethics Committee established, as well as a fair and democratic open public discussion detailing our concerns.